

Ana Isabel Pereira, MD, DESA, FEAMS

Ana Isabel Pereira works as a consultant anaesthesiologist at the Department of Anaesthesiology of Centro Hospitalar de Vila Nova de Gaia/Espinho in Portugal.

She is involved in airway management teaching, being responsible for organizing airway management courses and workshops and participating as faculty member of national and international airway management courses. She also served as speaker and member of organizing and scientific committees in both national and international congresses. Ana Isabel completed her Master's Degree in Difficult Airway Management and is a certified Airway Teacher by the European Airway Management Society (EAMS). She was promoted to EAMS 'Teach the Airway Teacher' educator after teaching internationally and implementing such airway trainer courses in Portugal. Due to her profound interest in clinical airway management, she specialized in providing anaesthesia services for bronchology and interventional pulmonology, working on one of the few Portuguese referral centers. She is the coordinator of the Difficult Airway Management Group of her Department and one of the founding members of ATAM – Advanced Techniques for Airway Management Project.

Ana Isabel covered the position as Portuguese Council Representative of EAMS and was elected during the EAMS general assembly to the Board of Directors of the Society. She is the EAMS representative of the Society in the European Society of Anaesthesiology and Intensive Care (ESAIC) since January 2021 and member of the Specialist Societies Committee and, till 2023, member of the Scientific Subcommittee 11 (Respiration and Airway Management) of ESAIC.

In September 2022 she was awarded the Fellowship of the European Airway Management Society (FEAMS).

Her main interests are difficult airway management, airway management in special circumstances, medical education, clinical teaching, simulation and training.
